A Narrative Enquiry Exploring Identity & Purpose of Doctors Unretiring

This research is important because doctors' decisions to resume working after retirement can have far-reaching and positive effects on the access to and quality of medical services available. Thus, identifying the unique challenges and opportunities associated, and the identity processes that occur, with doctors unretiring is valuable.

This research study is part of an honours dissertation research study conducted by Rakiza Hussein: rakiza.hussein@griffithuni.edu.au

This study is intended to increase understanding of doctors' experiences of unretirement in Australia, and the role of identity processes during this journey as they re-enter the medical profession post-retirement.
